Dear Buz:

As I am preparing an abstract for the forthcoming APA meeting, I recall hearing Dr. Rome express the wish for additional presentations concerning the application of computer sciences to psychiatry. Your demonstrations at the last meeting were excellent, and I am writing to inquire if you have considered preparing a symposium or a round table for the next meeting? I know that Dr. Ströebel will be presenting some of his observations at the next IBM Medical Symposium. We are preparing a summary of our experiences for that same symposium.

I am sure that there will be a few members of the APA in Poughkeepsie. Perhaps these presentations, if they are satisfactory, may provide a basis for a symposium at the APA.

My summer plans to visit your laboratory became disorganized when I suffered the loss of my father in early August. I hope to have an opportunity to call you on one of my forthcoming visits to the East Coast.

My best regards.

Sincerely yours,

Max Fink, M.D.
Professor of Psychiatry
