Dear Paddy,

I presented the proposed study of Tegretol to Dr. Itil when I visited St. Louis last week. The modifications which you suggested seemed agreeable. He hesitated undertaking a study immediately because he had just instituted another study in the hospital and preferred to wait a short while to stabilize that program first. He will be in touch with you.

With regard to my comparative study of cyclazocine and imipramine in depressives, I am now selecting patients. Dr. Bird of Sterling-Winthrop indicates that they would prefer obtaining imipramine on the open market, crushing it and putting it into capsules, rather than obtaining a special supply. Many thanks anyway for your kind offer of assistance.

My best regards.

Sincerely yours,

Max Fink, M.D.
