Dear Joe:

I have just received a copy of Masserman's Volume VI and find your article on computers quite interesting. Concurrently, I have just returned from a visit with Drs. Starkweather and Hargreaves at Langley Porter. They seem to know your work quite well and I found that they were also preparing dictionaries of their patients' speech. (I had the feeling that they were not as sophisticated in the application of this method as you seem to be).

I anticipate that my next trip East will be during the ARNMD meetings in December. It would be helpful to me if you could set aside an afternoon or an evening so that we could go over your programs and I could learn some more about the state of this art. Perhaps also it would be a good opportunity to call a meeting of your research committee and we might see what fun we should have with the Academy!

My best regards to Nora.

Sincerely yours,

Max Fink, M. D.
