Dear Dr. Janssen:

I am pleased to send the two reprints which you have requested. The chlorpromazine-imipramine-placebo study in depression has since been replicated by NIMH and you may be interested in the reports which have appeared, written by Dr. Raskin. You may wish to obtain some of the preprints from him directly.

The comparative antidepressant study which you suggest sounds interesting, but we do not have available a population of chronic depressives. Indeed, it is difficult to find investigators who have such populations at their disposal. Have you thought of undertaking such a study overseas?

Sincerely yours,

Max Fink, M.D.
Professor of Psychiatry
