

March 15, 1967

Professor Max Hamilton
Department of Psychiatry
The University of Leeds
15 Hyde Terrace,
Leeds 2, England

Dear Max,

It was a most pleasant surprise to receive your kind letter of March 6. It is an honor to send you the enclosed copy of our LSD report. Of the many papers that my associates and I have written during the past decade, this has excited the most interest and it is surprising, for we wrote it in response to the popular interest a year ago hoping to impede the growing hysteria. We have been unsuccessful and LSD is as popular in New York as pout sheets at a race track.

My family and I are most pleased to be back in the big city and while it will probably take another year to re-establish my laboratory, I am optimistic that I will be able to continue the study programs which were so successful in Missouri.

When you plan to come to New York, I hope you will have an opportunity to visit me. Surely, one of the main benefits of being in New York is the focus it represents for international travelers.

My best regards.

Sincerely yours,

Max Fink, M.D.
Professor of Psychiatry

MF:kp

enclosure