Dear Mike:

Following your suggestion, we recalculated the actual p-values for the first analysis for each drug condition. The results are enclosed in these three graphs. The observations for these samples show some discrimination between the drug conditions, but again, the clarity which we hoped to achieve by maintaining a constant state of consciousness is not better manifest. However, you are correct in suggesting that this form of presentation is less subject to criticism. In the final report, when the new analyses are completed, we will adopt this graphic model.

I look forward to visiting with you on August 10.

Sincerely yours,

Max Fink, M.D.
