RE: Mr. Heywood W. Zeidman

Dear Dr. McPherson:

Early in his school career at New York Medical College, Mr. Zeidman applied for summer work in this division. At that time we were involved with the study of novel narcotic antagonists and he carried out chemical assays and also interviewed patients. During the subsequent years, he volunteered for a number of experiments as a subject, in our assay of new psychotropic drugs.

In his relationships I have always found him to be bright, cooperative, enthusiastic, and dependable. He worked well with my staff and with the patients. I believe he would make an industrious and enthusiastic trainee.

Sincerely yours,

Max Fink, M.D.
Professor of Psychiatry
