Dear Sam:

I am returning the copy of the paper "The Behavioral Effects of Anticholinergic Psychotomimetics and their Antagonists in Man and Animals" which was submitted for publication with the other panel reports on "Anticholinergic Hallucinogens."

I regret that you have not acknowledged the support of the Psychiatric Research Foundation of Missouri in this paper.

The Foundation was instrumental in making possible the appointment of many members to this Institute (including Dr. Lang), and in providing moral and financial support which made the early growth of this Institute so rapid. The Board of Directors requested that publications which resulted from the work of appointees to the Foundation, be acknowledged, and you were notified recently of their request by Dr. Ulett.

Both as a courtesy, and as the basis for the expenditure of their funds, it is essential that acknowledgment be included not only in this report (which I am enclosing for correction), but in every report that is presented from the Department.

Incidentally, some days ago, in reading this report I noted that you had submitted the paper "Ditran and its Antagonists in Psychiatric Populations" to the Archives of General Psychiatry. I requested a copy of that report, and I am doing so again.

Thank you for your co-operation.

Sincerely yours,

Max Fink, M. D.
Executive Director
