Dear Skitch,

It was a pleasure talking to you yesterday.

In 1971, and again in January of this year, I was asked by the Director of Research at another European company to put my thoughts on the needs of psychopharmacology on paper. I did so, and the enclosed notes reflect my thinking of a few months ago. In re-reading this, I would make so few amendments that the text is essentially my present opinion.

I trust this is useful.

Sincerely yours,

Max Fink, M.D.
