Dear Allen:

Enclosed are two copies of the behavioral data summary of the comparison of doxepin hydrochloride (25 and 10 mg) and doxepin pamoate (10 mg) in male volunteers. The behavioral data parallels the EEG data quite well. It is this data that clarified for us, the differences in behavioral data obtained on a moment-to-moment basis compared to summary data at the end of an experiment.

An extra copy is enclosed for Dr. Hackett, as she requested it.

My best regards.

Sincerely yours,

Max Fink, M.D.
Professor of Psychiatry
