Dear Dr. Polvan:

You know that I enjoyed my visit to Istanbul very much. Your hospitality and that of your associates was overwhelming. But most important, I was enthusiastic about the progress of the fluphenazine and butaperazine studies.

On my return, I found your letter requesting some medical supplies from the United States. I regret that I had not received this before I left for I would surely have complied. Please excuse me.

I have written to Dr. Itil about the studies and have suggested that we plan to meet earlier in the week of the CINP meetings to write the report for presentation. I have told him of the tables I suggested and I am sure that he will write to you either confirming or changing the outline.

I look forward to seeing Miss Guven in New York early this summer and yourself in the fall. Please extend my best personal regards to Drs. Ziyalar, Yagcioglu and Songar for their courtesy and patience during my visit.

Sincerely yours,

Max Fink, M.D.
Professor of Psychiatry
