Dear Alain,

Enclosed is a draft copy of the summary information in the first fluphenazine decanoate project. This contains only the most important clinical information, for we are planning to submit this to a general medical journal.

We have also written a longer version, which contains the more conventional psychopharmacological data, and a copy of this report will be submitted with all the definitive data of the project. Most of the information is now in my hands except for four additional summaries of clinical data which Dr. Keskiner has promised to send me shortly. As soon as this information is received, I will submit a full documentation of this initial study program.

The enclosed draft copy is still undergoing review and I would be grateful for your comments. As soon as a definitive draft is available, this will be sent to you for your distribution.

It was kind of Dr. Joy to send me the letter from England, and I will make available to him copies of the definitive draft for your English colleagues.

Dr. Simeon has taken an active part in the study program in New York and we are ready to develop the fluphenazine decanoate study in the Mental Hygiene Clinic. Can you tell me when supplies will be available?

My best regards to you and your charming wife.

Sincerely yours,

Max Fink, M.D.
Professor of Psychiatry
