Dear Kurt,

It was a pleasant surprise to receive a gift of holiday wine. In past years, these vintages have been excellent, and I have come to reserve them for dinner with my special friends. Thank you for your thoughtfulness.

During the past year, I have put aside my work with pharmaco-EEG and devoted most of my time to editing a new scientific journal, CONVULSIVE THERAPY. I received the invitation to organize the journal in July, 1984; agreed in September; and the first issue was mailed in mid-April, 1985. Succeeding numbers appeared in July and September and the fourth will be mailed the first week in December. We are on a good schedule now, and I think the journal will be accepted.

It has been much work, but I have enjoyed it. From time to time, I regret not working with our volunteers and with the EEG graphs, but that work continues in the hands of others.

I trust the year has been a good one for you. My thanks again, and my best wishes for a healthy and a happy 1986. My best regards to Penny.

Sincerely yours,

Max Fink, M.D.
