

April 17, 1967

Dr. Joseph G. Bird
Director, Division of Clinical Research
Sterling-Winthrop Research Institute
Rensselaer, New York

Dear Joe,

Both Dr. Freedman and I were pleased with your letter of April 12. The anti-depressant study of cyclazocine has been going quite well. Nine patients are already in the study and three of these are receiving cyclazocine. Each has tolerated the treatment and we are encouraged to continue the study. The supplies of cyclazocine were shipped from St. Louis to New York and we are now using them.

Dr. Freedman was delighted with your invitation to present a seminar in Rensselaer, for, as you know he frequently visits the capital area where he has family. Perhaps you would care to arrange such a visit after the American Psychiatric Association meetings.

I would be pleased to have you visit any time during the next few weeks except April 21 and May 3.

Sincerely yours,

Max Fink, M.D.
Professor of Psychiatry

MF:kp

cc: Dr. Freedman