Dear Earl,

For some time I have been interested in writing a book on the relation of drugs, EEG and behavior and would like to undertake this mission this fall. I recognize that while the content of my writing is scientifically accurate, its style is poor and needs the assistance of someone capable of handling scientific writing with clarity as the principal objective. Can you recommend, or would you inquire of your brother or friends for someone who might assist me in preparing a better presentation this winter?

Incidentally ENDO Laboratories made naloxone available and the U. S. Public Health Service, tetrahydrocannabinol, both on the same day last week, so that we are able to undertake these studies after Labor Day.

Thank you.

Sincerely yours,

Max Fink, M.D.
Professor of Psychiatry
