Dear Martin:

During the past few days since my return to St. Louis, I have had numerous occasions to reflect on our splendid visit with you and your staff in Newcastle. As I summarized my experiences for different groups of the staff, I found that I was often referring to your work and making suggestions for further progress here based on our visit with you.

Yesterday, I wrote to Donald Klein at Hillside Hospital, my former associate, regarding your observations in the depressive and phobic groups. I encouraged him to write to you and Dr. Clair Guernsey to expand on this interesting observation.

My best regards, and many thanks for your hospitality.

Sincerely yours,

Max Fink, M.D.
