

73SB-848SB

28 December 1973

Craig Burrell, M.D.
Vice President--Research
Sandoz Pharmaceuticals
Hanover, New Jersey 07936

Dear Craig:

Sitting in Leo's chair last week, he told me of the many interesting things that you seem to be doing. It must be a far cry from clinical drug evaluations. Yesterday, in reading a list of new publications, I found a citation for The Non-Medical Use of Drugs: Contemporary Intervention Issues. The citation does not have an address for the publisher, and I would be grateful if you could have your secretary send me the publisher's address and the price so that we can obtain a copy for our library.

In October I had the opportunity to visit Sandoz in Basel and presented a colloquium on my favorite subject, the CNS effects of psychoactive drugs. I was delighted to find their laboratories fully equipped to carry out computer processing of EEGs. Both Dr. Roubicek and his co-worker, Mr. Matejek, have done a splendid job in programming. I hope that these methods for predicting psychoactive drug effects will find some practical expression.

My regards and best wishes for a healthy 1974,

Sincerely yours,

Max Fink, M.D.
Professor of Psychiatry

MF/cis