Dear Dr. Goesswald:

Thank you very much for your courtesy and kindness during our visit in December and for the delightful Christmas greetings. Turan and I have discussed the possibilities for Dr. Steinbrecher and find that at the present time, his appointment in a clinical study program would be difficult. However, I have a considerable interest in establishing a laboratory for the study of brain wave changes in animals in order to compare these to our observations in men. Dr. Steinbrecher's curriculum vitae is clearly a clinical one, and yet, he has extensive neurophysiological experience. As such an opportunity may interest him, I am writing directly to him, suggesting such an opportunity.

Thank you for referring him to us.

Sincerely yours,

Max Fink, M.D.
