

73SB535-A

February 15th, 1973

John W. Johnston,
Drugg Abuse Information Programs,
Biological Sciences Communication Project,
The George Washington University Medical Center,
2001 S Street, N.W.,
Washington, D.C. 20009.

Dear Mr. Johnston,

I think a monthly newsletter reviewing programs in narcotic antagonists would be a useful effort, and I am pleased to assist you in any way that I can. If it is not useful, it at least can be fun, and I suggest that you try.

I am willing to contribute comments, if you phrase specific questions.

One of the things which I think could be useful in an early issue is a list of the centers in the United States using narcotic antagonists, their present experience, drugs used, etc. A second effort might be to ask each of the people working with the drugs to try to describe the framework within which they are working and how the narcotic antagonists are used.

Please note the change in address.

Sincerely yours,

Max Fink, M.D.
Professor of Psychiatry

MF/ij