Dear Irv,

I finally found the time to read the two volumes edited by Frank Ayd you so kindly sent me, the one on Rational Psychopharmacotherapy and the second, on the Medical, Moral Issues. I admit I expected the usual conference fare -- overdone chicken, peas and mashed potatoes -- but was pleasantly surprised by the variety and freshness of the subjects as developed by the participants. The issues of research subjects, right to treatment, and legal-psychiatric problems are well covered, with some refreshing insights.

I thank you again for the thoughtfulness in your gift.

Sincerely yours,

Max Fink, M.D.
