I am sorry that Abba turned us down for he is the most dynamic worker in the field. However, Lyle Miller is a pleasant, friendly researcher who came to psychology late in his career and has done some interesting research from a psychophysical nature. He is a careful worker but does not have the sophistication or the experience of Kastin. I don't believe that he would be as challenging or as interesting as Dr. Flor-Henry who spoke today.

I think I would pass on this invitation.
