Dear Barabara,

Again, I want to thank you for the opportunity to exhibit our study of combined drugs at the American Psychiatric Association meetings. The exhibit was well attended, many questions were asked-- some cogent and relevant, and some trivial, but all interesting. Fifty-one visitors requested additional information, and we distributed more than half (about 700) the reprints provided.

Many of the visitors who asked questions appeared to be foreign trained physicians. If it be true that much interest in combined drug therapy may exist among foreign physicians, perhaps you would consider exhibiting this presentation at the forthcoming World Congress of Psychiatry meetings in Mexico City at the end of November ? I believe the exhibit will be well received.

My best regards.

Sincerely yours,

Max Fink, M.D.
