Gentlemen:

I have recently become interested in studies with cycloserine, and have contacted the Ely Lilly Company for their advice. A recent report suggested that the l-form of cycloserine would have unusual central nervous system effects in man.

I understand that you produce this compound, and would appreciate a quotation in quantities sufficient for clinical trial. From the available literature, the usual dosage would be 200 to 500 milograms per day for a ten to fifteen day period.

Thank you for your co-operation.

Sincerely yours,

Max Fink, M.D.
Professor of Psychiatry
