Kronos 1993

State University of New York at Stony Brook
School of Medicine

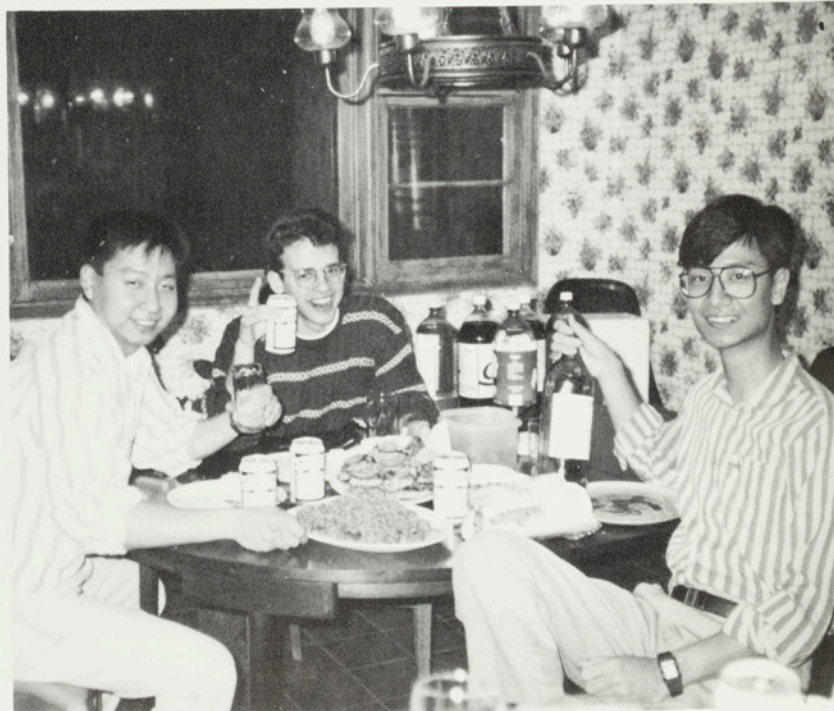

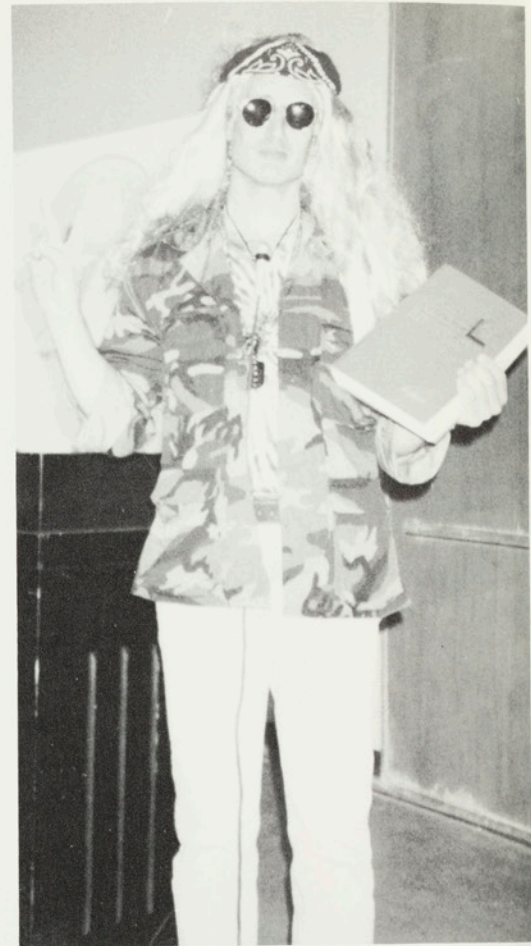

KRONOS, in Greek mythology, was the son of Uranus (Heaven) and Gaea (Earth), and the youngest of the Titans. He overthrew Uranus and ruled over heaven and earth with Rhea, his sister and wife, his reign being considered the Golden Age. The children of Kronos and Rhea were Hestia, Demeter, Hera, Pluto, Poseidon, and Zeus. Having been warned that he would be dethroned by one of them, Kronos swallowed them as they were born; but Zeus, the youngest, was saved by Rhea, who gave Kronos a stone wrapped in baby clothes for him to swallow and concealed the infant Zeus in Crete. When Zeus reached manhood, he rescued his five brothers and sisters by compelling Kronos to disgorge them and the stone; then, with Pluto and Poseidon, he rebelled against Kronos. The younger generation of divinities held Mount Olympus, and Zeus was aided by the Cyclopes and the hundred-handed giants whom he released from Tartarus, where they had been imprisoned by Uranus; the Titans supported Kronos. Zeus and his allies were finally victorious and the Titans were cast into Tartarus, Atlas being condemned to hold up the heavens as his penalty.

DEDICATION

The process of becoming a physician is a complicated one which has affected each graduate in a unique and personalized way. This page is testament to those classmates who have endured special hardships during the past four years. Our thoughts and prayers have been with you during troubled times. May the character and dignity that you have shown in the past serve you, your family, and your career in the years to come. It is with great pride that we have shared medical school with you, and we dedicate this page in your honor.

School of Medicine
Office of the Dean

Dear Class of 1993:

The class of 1993!! How prescient of you to have chosen this year to graduate from medical school. After all, this year promises to usher in what is bound to be the most interesting time in the history of American medicine. The year 1993 sees our country on the verge of a fundamental, thorough restructuring of our health care system, a restructuring that is sure to touch the professional lives of each one of you. The focus of attention is riveted as never before on what we physicians do, not only for our patients but to our patients - and to society at large. Remember that some 80% of the total health care bill is under the direct control of physicians, representing as it does the decisions you and I make in caring for our patients. And the bill we are presenting to society for those decisions is simply no longer affordable. The challenges facing all of us - and especially you as you begin your professional lives - are awesome. The fundamental challenge is to maintain our profession's high standards for care in the face of inexorable pressures to contain costs and expand access. Central to our success will be our ability to determine, with much greater precision than we ever have, precisely what resources it takes to produce high quality care, and to take responsibility for the resources consumed in providing that care. We also must hold ourselves accountable to society for the appropriateness of what we do, and take seriously our professional obligation to educate our fellow citizens about how to prevent illness and avoid risk. These are very tall orders, indeed.

But I don't want to be too preachy on the happy occasion of your graduation. You have worked extremely hard to get to this milestone in your lives and have certainly earned the precious accolade connoted by the M.D. degree. There is no doubt in my mind that you are up to the exciting challenges facing our beloved profession and that you will enjoy enormous gratification from the work you are now called upon to do.

I hope you leave Stony Brook with memories as fond as those I have of you. I also hope that Stony Brook will remain very much a part of you and you a part of it. Certainly, the school will need your help, your support and your affection in the years ahead.

My best wishes for all you dream to achieve.

Sincerely,

Match Day

Excitement builds as med students hear about residencies.

BY TRACEY ROSENTHAL

As champagne corks and flashbulbs popped, 104 fourth-year medical students at the State University at Stony Brook School of Medicine celebrated March 17 as they discovered where they will go to complete their medical training.

The students shared their nervous tension with all other medical students across the nation who learned which hospitals have accepted them into residency programs.

"I'm waiting to find out about all my classmates too. We've known each other for four years, and the 100 of us have been really close. It's exciting to see where everyone is going — it could be anywhere," said student Marguerite Munz of Wantagh.

The way the matching process works is: students rank their top three choices in order of preference, while residency program directors compile their own lists. The lists are then tabulated by a computer at the Association of American Medical Colleges in Washington.

As she waited to find out if she got her first choice, Nancy Hundt of Hicksville was nervous. "It's pretty scary," she said. "This is the next three, maybe four, maybe more years of your life, and you don't know where you're going, so the tension is full."

Richard Chen and classmate Ira Liebross were equally jittery and hopeful they would be matched with their first choice. "You don't know where you're going to end up, even what state. I applied all over, to Boston, New York, and North Carolina. But I'll leave it up to the computer and see what happens," Chen said. "Hopefully I'll be somewhere on the list."

Liebross wouldn't even say what his first choices were for fear of jinxing the results he would soon have in his hand.

According to Dr. Peirce Gardner, associate dean of academic affairs at the medical school, none of the students had anything to worry about. Every student in the class was matched, with 58 percent matched with their first-choice school, and 80 percent matched with one of their top three.

"They were very ambitious in seeking the best programs, and we're pleased that our students did that well in very strong programs," he said. "We're proud of them."

AN ECSTATIC AMY CHU shares her good news with classmates. She will study anesthesiology in Massachusetts. Photo by Maxine Hicks

And as it turned out, everyone was happy. Chen landed Duke University Medical Center in North Carolina for internal medicine. Liebross was matched with Lancaster General Hospital in Pennsylvania for family practice, and Hundt will head to Greenwich Hospital in Connecticut to do her residency in internal medicine.

A shaky, out-of-breath Amy Chu shared her good news with the entire class as she jumped up and down, crying, after opening her envelope.

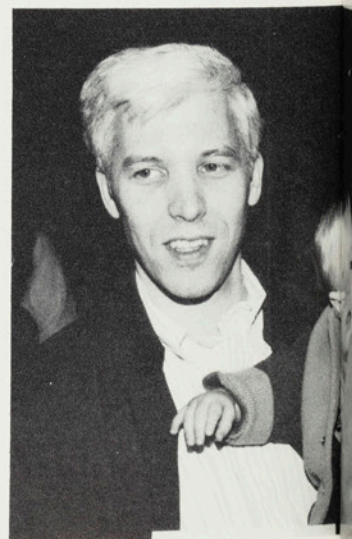

"I'm very excited," was all she could manage to say. Chu will head for Massachusetts to study anesthesiology at Brigham & Women's Hospital after a preliminary year studying internal medicine at Stony Brook.

"I'm ecstatic. Now I don't have to worry about moving, for another year at least," Munz joked, after learning she will remain at Stony Brook for her preliminary year in pediatrics and then will head to The Catholic Medical Center of Brooklyn and Queens for ophthalmology.

Bill Quirck, a native of Southold, will leave Long Island's stormy weather behind for Stanford University Hospital in California to do his residency in emergency medicine.

"It was my first choice, and one of the best places in the country. I'm the happiest guy in the place," he said. "I guess I did good on the interviews, and I got lucky."

Quirck's buddy for the last eight years, Damien McNight from Babylon, will only be half an hour away doing his residency in family medicine at the University of California at San Francisco. "I'm psyched. It was my first choice, and I couldn't be happier," he said.

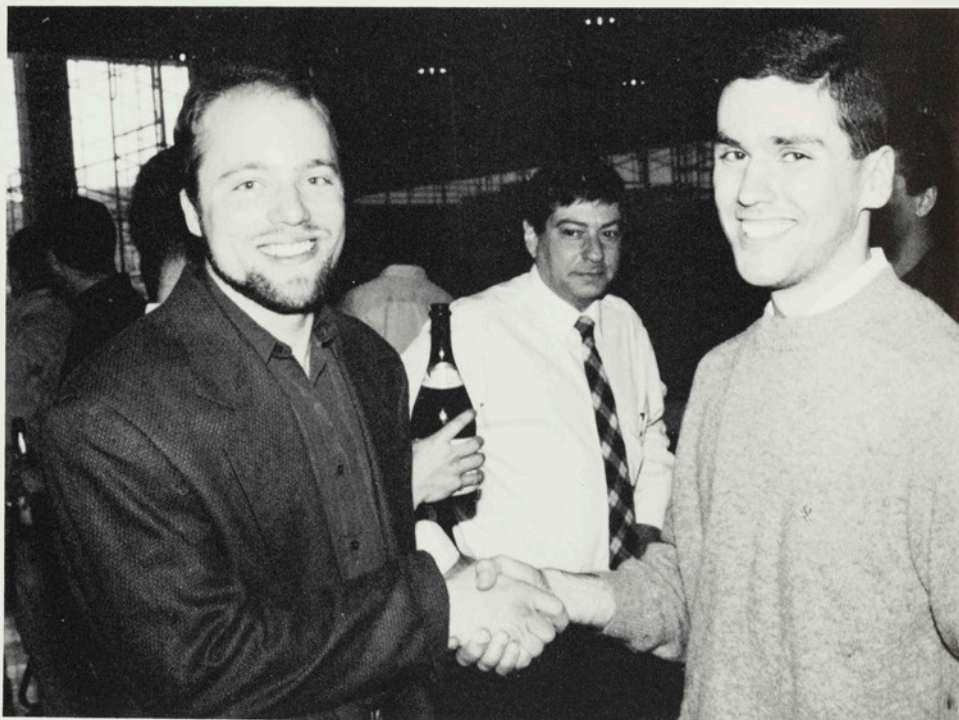

Robert Henry, a Rocky Point native, will be just a ferry ride away from home at Yale-New Haven Hospital doing his residency in primary internal medicine.

"I'm going to Yale, my first choice," he beamed. Proud of his class, Henry was quick to point to his classmates' accomplishments. "Look at this list. We did the best we've done ever," he said. "This is the best."

Brooklyn native Kirwin Gibbs will return to Brooklyn for his residency in radiology at the SUNY Health Sciences Center in Brooklyn after a transitional year at St. Vincent's Hospital in New York. "My preliminary was my first choice, but the other was my third," he said. Third place in this case was first, however. "It's the place I liked the most, but I ranked places with better reputations above it. I guess I'll be happy anyway."

Champagne bottle in hand, Gibbs was excited. "I'm going to celebrate for a long time," he said.

OATH

I do solemnly swear by that which I hold most sacred, that:

I will be loyal to the profession of medicine and it's humanitarian principles.

I will use my power to help the sick to the best of my ability and judgement;

I will abstain from harming or wronging any person by it.

I will not be so intrigued by the science of medicine that I will lose sight of patients as people.

I will attend to the suffering of my patients with compassion and will use my knowledge to minimize that suffering.

Whatever I see or hear professionally or privately which ought not be divulged I will keep secret.

I will hand on precepts, lectures and all other learning to students of medicine and to those who will succeed me.

I will strive for the improvement of my science and my art, knowing that medicine may be imperfect but that its progress is constant.

I make these promises solemnly, freely and upon my honor.

By the time it came to the edge of the Forest the stream had grown up, so that it was almost a river, and, being grown-up, it did not run and jump and sparkle along as it used to do when it was younger, but moved more slowly. For it knew now where it was going, and it said to itself, "There is no hurry. We shall get there some day."

From the very first time that I held you in my arms, I felt in my heart that my son would always be a great source of pride. He always had a desire to help others, and his wish came true when he succeeded and became a doctor.

Son, you have filled our lives with joy and special memories. You are loved and cherished and will always be very special to me.

May God always be with you and guide you in all you do. Remember how much we loved you then, now, and always.

Son, if you can count the raindrops when they fall, that's how much of my blessing I am giving to you.

CONGRATULATIONS CLASS OF 1993

SPLORGE
AND SPLORKS
By BILL DAVIS AND GUS ROMANO

The staff of Kronos '93 greatly appreciates your patronage.
Without your support, this annual endeavor would not be possible.

Editors

Kronos 1993 was born in November of 1992. With-in 24 hours Bill Quirk and Gregory Hirsch were $14,000 in debt and clueless as where to begin. At the first meeting, Bel Barker frightened us with advanced yearbook terminology such as "bleeding off," "cropping," "close register" and "copy"; she subsequently jumped ship in the wake of our ignorance.

Bill Davis, John Rhee, Gus Romano and Alan Goldenberg were quickly recruited, and the odyssey began. The initial meetings were combination beer bashes and gossip sessions with little work being accomplished. We then solicited our classmates for their support (ie. purchase yearbooks, send in photos, etc.). The response was so overwhelming that we would often weep

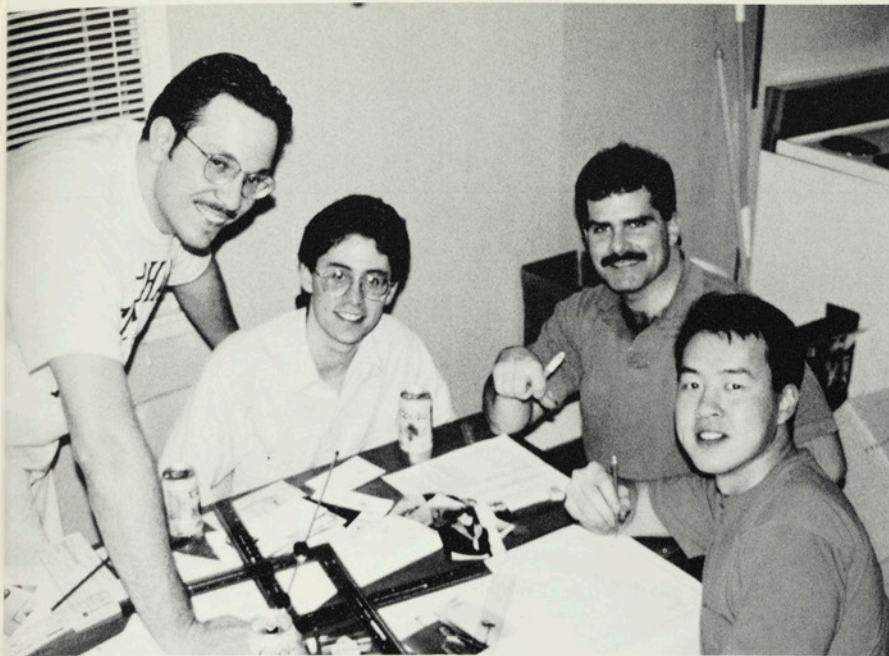

Not the Love Couch, but some strong feelings.

Dura not penetrated, Alan forged on.

All of Greg's suggestions were taken seriously.

Gus' 600-watt forehead was an unforgiving light source.

Only Bill and Gus, wearing protective gear, were spared when the ungrounded Rhee burst into flames.

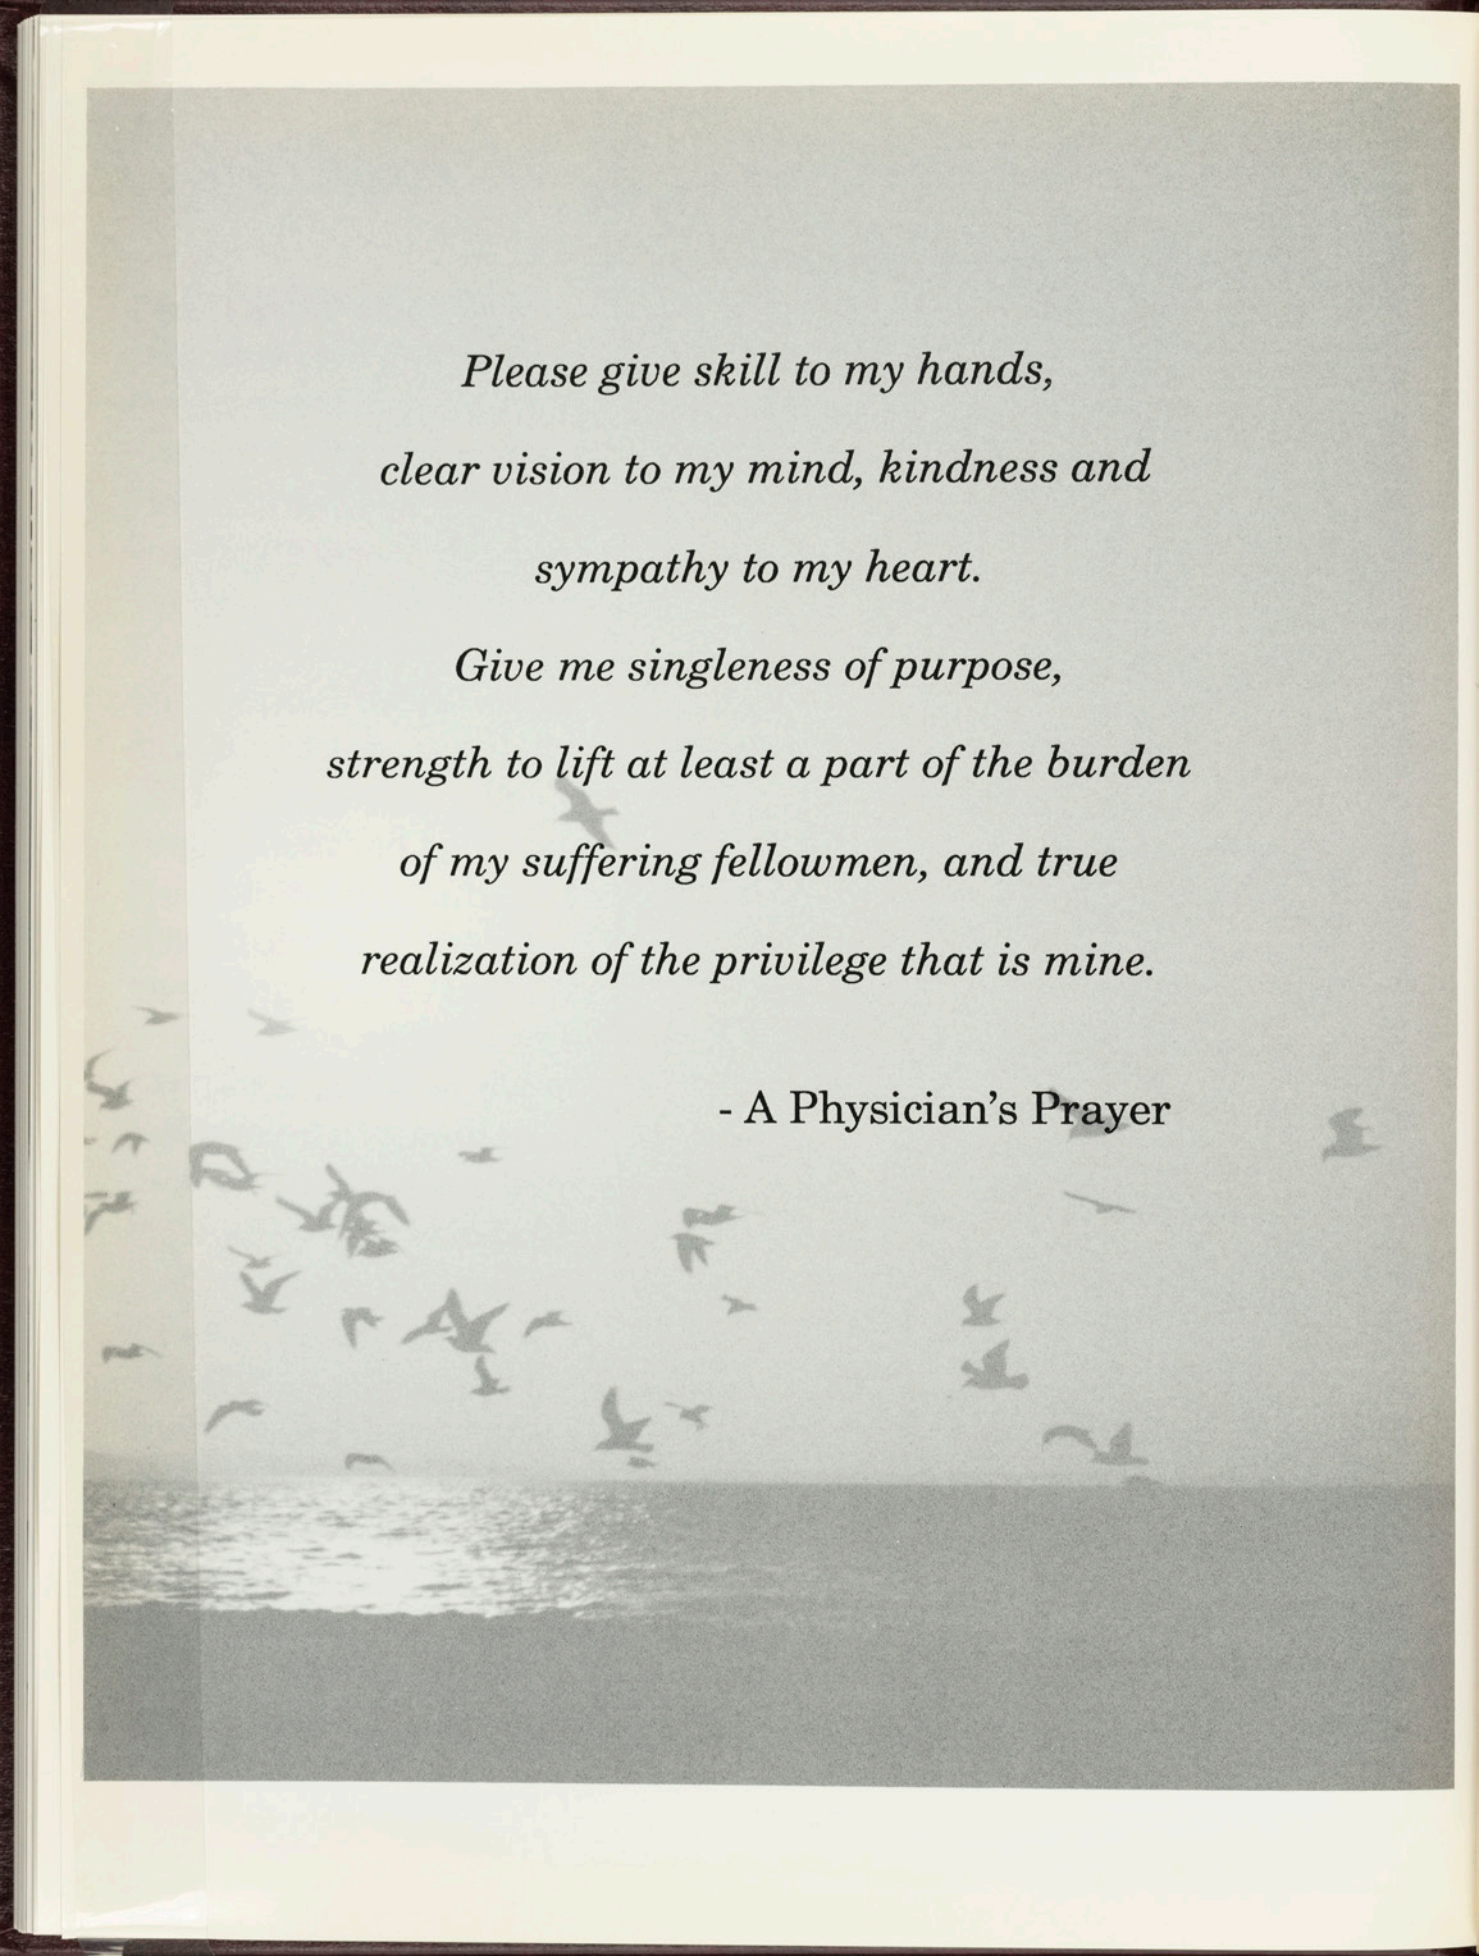

The enlarger was found to have many applications outside of the yearbook.

openly, console each other, and sing accolades of our motivated classmates (NOT!).

Deadlines came fast and we were coached throughout by the yearbook company representative, Steve Lerner. His advice and help were greatly appreciated. The meetings became longer and more productive, and our Nintendo skills surpassed our greatest expectations.

We've attempted to portray our four years of medical school as they happened for the Class of '93. We hope you all enjoy our creation and that it brings back good memories as you peruse it in the years to come. Best of luck as you go out and turn your dreams into reality. ALL THE BEST . . .

Please give skill to my hands, clear vision to my mind, kindness and sympathy to my heart.

Give me singleness of purpose, strength to lift at least a part of the burden of my suffering fellowmen, and true realization of the privilege that is mine.
